Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Tuesday 30 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Fine and warm away from northwest. Turning colder by Thursday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Northern Scotland staying cloudy with further spells of rain, heaviest and most persistent rain over western Highland. Turning colder in the far north later. Otherwise, generally dry with clear periods.

Wednesday:
Most of England and Wales fine, warm and dry, sunniest skies in southeast. Cloudier across Scotland and Northern Ireland with some rain at times. Colder in the north than Tuesday.

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Largely dry with sunny spells for most. Still very warm in the southwest on Thursday, otherwise temperatures around average with chilly nights. Cooler and cloudier at times in the east.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.